We may not be able to assemble with our friends and family during this time when we traditionally observe Passover and Easter, but these feasts and observances have not been cancelled. In fact they have more significance than ever since we are all shut in. They speak of protection, provision and promise. You can celebrate at home, view online or livestream services, or simply read what the scripture says about Passover (Exodus Chapters 11 & 12) and Easter (Matthew 26-28).
