Tilghman Watermen's Museum Update

One of the things we have learned during COVID is that we are social creatures. And for that reason, we are anxious to open ASAP. As we prepare to open, we realize we need you and you need us. Have you ever considered the benefits of volunteering? Volunteering allows you to connect with the community, meet new people, use your skills and talents (pulling weeds anyone?) and gives you a sense of purpose. Research shows that volunteering contributes to health, plus it is really fun! As an all-volunteer organization, we have many different areas that will interest you if you are looking for something to do. We are asking both young and old to volunteer a few hours a month whether it is behind the scenes, or inside of the Museum. Need student service hours for school? Check with us. We have some great storytellers who will help get you started. We would love to hear from you as we gear up to serve our community in the new season.
