What's Happenin' at the Watermen's Museum

The Chesapeake boasts a unique and varied fleet of workboats used in the harvesting of seafood. Models of these boats are used to tell the watermen's story and history and are found throughout the museum. Many are donated by local residents, such as the skipjack Kathryn, built by Vincent Haddaway. Some are on loan from private collectors, such as the Fred Mothershead Collection displayed on the stairway. The skipjack model pictured here was also built by Vincent Haddaway and was recently donated by Jeanne Geisler in memory of her father Robert L. Geisler. It was restored by former museum curator, Jim Moses.
