Visit Tilghman Watermen's Museum to learn about the "W" house on Tilghman Island

The Lee House is one of 13 unique "W" houses built ca. 1890-1900 on Tilghman Island and in Sherwood. Seven survive, but only two remain in their unmodernized condition. This is the first, and in all likelihood the only one, that will be publicly-accessible in near original condition. Named for the first residents, the house remained in that family until the 1930s. It was then inherited by Leona Garvin Harrison, and became part of the "Elms", a very popular and successful fishing party resort. "Miss Leona," an island grande dame, ran the resort and used the Lee House for overflow guests. This use continued until 1971, and in 1984 the house passed into the Walton family.
